Aloha fellow Spiritualists and friends. My thoughts, both inspirational and original, are concerning the conditions and knowledge of the present day. We are in an era of material progression. All around us we witness man's ability to harness the elements of this world. Communication satellites electronically connect millions in their orbits around the earth. Infinitesimal rays penetrate distance or matter. Man moves through space and explores other planets. Computers store facts and figures available for almost instant recall. There are a few of the wonderful servants developed and controlled by our human kind--man and woman.

These revealed wonders of the Infinite Intelligence are for the good of man. Of course it is up to man to direct and control the conditions.

Where did these many inventions originate? Some would say, "How silly, they were invented by man." Were they really? Of course we know that man is the instrument, demonstrating original thinking coupled with inspiration from the unseen plane of knowledge. Anyone who thinks that he has discovered something is a fool.

He has merely been directed along lines of thought until a definite objective was accomplished. The only thing discovered was the ability to receive communication--direction and knowledge necessary to accomplish the task. It has rightfully been said, "There is nothing new under the Sun."

We are truely aware of the importance of the anniversary of Modern Spiritualism.

The importance of the innocent yet frustrated little girls who finally shouted, "Mr. Splitfoot do as I do". And the unseen intelligence did! Raps duplicated exactly the sounds or motions. Little wonder that Margaret and Katie should exclaim, "Look it can see as well as hear!"

Yes, we know "THERE IS NO DEATH". Life is continuous. Every entity merely steps forth from his house of clay. The body is then laid aside and the intelligence lives in celestial form.

Each is very much alive; the same as just prior to the transition taking place. The individuality and memory of each is still the same. Life truely proceeds without interruption into the next classroom. The celestial residence has begun. Those entities cannot always be seen by mortal eyes but, their life in the Etheric World is just as real.

How long has this other world of vibration existed? It suffices to accept that it is an eternal counter part of the material world. Throughout the aeons of time, life (all vibratory life) always has been and always will be.

In this issue, we read of an important, yes famous doctor of medicine, declaring absolute confidence that there is life after clinical death. Throughout all time various individuals have expressed these same facts. Religions originated via inspiration. Yes, all inventors have been inspired. There is no need to ask how is this possible. Each individual entity must entertain eventual progress. As knowledge is gained progress is achieved. Thoughts must be conveyed to become knowledge. We gain knowledge as an individual spark of divinity. Each is of God--Infinite Intelligence.

How much of today's accomplishments can we claim? Those emissaries of the Etheric World (the Spirit side of life) are not interested in fame or fortune. They give it all to us. We in the material world can have the credit, fame or whatever.

We must never be satisfied until we give something to our unseen friends. We cannot thank them enough. Thanks is a form of love. Love is a keying influence to communication.

The Natural Laws of Infinite Intelligence (God) are complex. Simply approached and truthfully accepted they unfold in our consciousness. Thus we learn and progress along the pathway of life. It matters not whether we are poets, musicians, mechanics, inventors or whatever. We all must attempt to unfold and progress. We are all receiving intuitive guidance from those friends over there.

We particularly express our thanks to our many pioneer friends. So many who fought the valiant battle against ignorance, oppression and bigotry. Would that we could name and then see each one individually. Somehow expressing our love and appreciation singularly to each, so that all might know--IT IS ALL WORTH THE EFFORT. WE ARE GRATEFUL!

The Chosen Ones

"A little child shall lead them."

Isa XI 6

Not to men of wordly wisdom
Did the light from Heaven come,
But to playful little children
In their humble Hydesville home.
Not by men of highest learning,
Men of deepest thought profound,
But by guileless little children
Was the light from heaven found.

While the wise ones scoffed, derided,
And declared it could not be,
Little children, in their own way,
Solved the wondrous mystery;
Asking, child like, simple queries,
Half in play, unmixed with fear,
The unseen one answered questions,
Proving It could surely hear.

"Do as I do," and the answer
Was a new and greater surprise,
And we see her gazing, child-like
With wide-open wonder-eyes,
As the import of the answer
Brought the spirit lesson clear,
And she cried, "Oh mother! mother!
It can see as well as hear!"

Started thus a world vibration,
With no pow'r to intervene;
Sped the tidings through each nation
And the spirit world unseen--
Led by wisdom of the angels
Wondrous story to relate --
Thus the playful little children
Opened wide the heavenly gate.

'Neath the kindly supervision
Of the dwellers of the skies
Little children builded wiser
Than the wisdom of the wise,
And the earth is brighter, richer,
Fairer is the world today,
And the angel world is nearer,
Since the children found the way.

Spiritualism is 129 years old

March is a time of celebration for Spiritualists. It's the anniversary of our religion in America. One hundred and twenty-nine years ago this month, Spiritualism saw the dawn through the wonder of two children.

Children's curiosity gives birth to Spiritualism in America.

It began simply, sparked by the frightened curiosity of two young girls. It was late and after supper March 31 when their energized curiosity rose above the uncertainties cast by candlelight in their small bedroom, and the uncanny reputation attached to the little wooden home they occupied.

Speaking in a flippant and demanding manner, the youngest girl said, "Mr. Splitfoot, do as I do," clapping her hands. At once came the reply, equal in number to her claps. Her older sister then tested the response, "Now, do just as I do." Again the reply was correct. And so, each girl, speaking in turn, registered her challenge to the unseen host and introduced the hamlet of Hydesville, marked by its single dirt cross-road in the State of New York, to the world as the birth place of Modern Spiritualism.

The children were Kate, (Catherine) and Margaret, (Margaretta) sisters in a farm family bearing the Quaker name of Fox.

For years the little frame house had stood fast, with its buried guest, waiting patiently for someone to listen and unravel the mystery surrounding the rappings, and unusual sights and happenings occurring within.

History originates the disturbances with the Bells, owners of the farm house in 1844. They allegedly murdered the local peddler, Charles B. Rosna, took his purse of $500, and buried him in the basement.

Shortly after the incident, the Bells moved, perhaps disturbed by the unseen presence which beckoned for a response. The Bells were followed by the Weekman family, which found the mystery too great. It wasn't until Dec. 11, 1847, that hope arrived. That was the day the Fox family took residence in the cottage--the Hydesville Cottage, a name given it by the inhabitants of the hamlet.

Unlike their predecessors, John Fox and his family were strangers to the area. None were familiar with the tales which were told of the cottage. He was of German ancestry, and Mrs. Fox was French--instilled with a strong Methodist faith. Like their mother, the girls, Kate and Margaret, who then resided in the household, were devout Methodists.

That same night the family members soon became aware that their unseen host could also see and respond accordingly. At this point in the evening, neighbors from the village were invited over and asked to witness their discovery.

It was first thought that the unwanted guest would leave on request. His refusal was loud and clear. He had presented himself to the Fox family to introduce this new word to the world.

Privately, and in time, the Fox family enjoyed the manifestations, but the odium that the publicity first gave them influenced the sisters to refuse the demand of Charles Rosna and other spirits and reject any thought of sharing their discovery any further.

In November, 1848, the spirits who had worked through the two girls said farewell and all manifestation ceased. Although the relationship had been short, the friendship proved too great and resulted in the Fox family making numerous attempts to recall them, all without success. The efforts continued and within a few weeks the two girls were again greeted by their spirit friends. However, they imposed a condition. The two girls were to share their gift and promote the cause. They agreed!

Neighbors of Fox Family agree:

Rappings prove survival after death

The March 31 incidents at the Hydesville Cottage received much notoriety and resulted in frequent investigation by many people of great importance. During the first years almost every large public meeting attended by the Fox sisters was greeted with some degree of ridicule and challenge. Those who came to scoff often stayed behind to pray.

The reality of the situation alarmed clergy in communities around Hydesville and in towns where the meetings were held. Since some of the statements presented through the Fox sisters did not harmonize with theological views of the time, the girls were characterized as being in league with Satan. They became the subject of sermons as clergy preached against them and prayed for destruction of Spiritualism. Though the impact of a future life, free of death, opened many to the new word, those who openly associated with the family in such practices were quickly ostracized in the community.

This latter fact makes it all the more interesting that friends and neighbors of the Fox family would attest to the validity of the occurrences within the Hydesville Cottage. They formed themselves into a committee of investigation and without prejudice recorded the facts exactly as they found them. Within a month the committee had prepared a report and had it published. Entitled, A Report of the Mysterious Noises heard in the House of Mr. John D. Fox, it represents their combined opinion that the fact of human survival after death and the power of communication was definitely proved to any mind capable of weighing the evidence.

Kate and Margaret kept their word and they were joined by their older sister Leah, who quickly developed into a medium through which the spirits were able to communicate.

After this the news of the manifestations at Hydesville spread very rapidly. Public meetings were held in Rochester and other large cities. The girls were taken to New York City, where they were introduced to the public by Horace Greeley. They were subjected to every possible test, many bordering on indignities, but they persisted in their chosen work. Today, because of them and their efforts, millions of people all over the civilized world have become freed from the fear of death and eternal punishment and assured of a conscious existence after death.

Hydesville Listened

This little community in New York was not the first to record raps and strange sounds. Similar occurrences have been recorded in other remote hamlets. In 1661, in England much to do was made of the raps in the home of Mr. Mompesson at Tedworth. Melanchthon recorded raps as having occurred at Oppenheim, Germany, in 1502, and at the Epworth Vicarage in 1716.

Although manifestations believed to be of a spirit related nature were in existence for some time before the Hydesville incident, this represented the first occasion that spirit opened communication for the birth of a new dispensation.

A Look At The Principal Characters Responsible For The Birth And Growth Of Modern Spiritualism

Margaretta Fox-Kane

Kate Fox-Jencken

Leah Fox-Underhill

Andrew Jackson Davis

One of America's earliest seers who achieved international recognition, Andrew Jackson Davis was founder and father of the American Lyceum movement. He was an author, healer and an early pioneer who helped prepare the way for the New Dispensation.

Emma Hardinge

Britten
Emma Hardinge Britten (1823-1899), medium, speaker, author, came to America with a theatrical company. Her most important work, "Modern American Spiritualism" serves as an invaluable history on the early development of the movement.

Robert Hare

A professor of chemistry at the Pennsylvania University, Dr. Robert Hare investigated the phenomena only to become an ardent believer and hard working exponent within the movement. He invented the Hare's Dial for spelling out communications.

Gov. Nathaniel P. Tallmadge (1795-1864)

The Gov. of the Territory, he Wisconsin (1844-'46), became the president of the Society for the Diffusion of Spiritual Knowledge in New York. The name of Nathaniel P. Tallmadge headed the list of 15,000 names on the memorial that was presented to Congress in April, 1854, asking for a complete and thorough investigation into the truth of Spiritualism.

Hon. John W. Edmonds

He was a judge of the Court of Appeals, the highest tribunal in the State of New York. John Edmonds joined a circle at the home of the Fox sisters as an investigator. He made the trip to expose them as frauds, but stayed to pray.

S.B. Brittan

He was the editor of the Spiritual Telegraph, and in time became one of Spiritualists' most philosophical and discriminating writers.

Charles Partridge

On May 6, 1852, Charles Partridge commenced the Spiritual Telegraph. It was one of the earliest known publications devoted to the pursuit of Modern Spiritualism.

Horace Greeley

(1811-1872). He was the editor of the New York Tribune and one of the chief investigators into the phenomena of the Fox sisters. He became their friend and occasional benefactor. (See page 10 for his personal comments about the Fox sisters.)

History ties Hydesville

to other noble occurrences

"About daylight this morning a warm breathing passed over my face suddenly waking me from a profound slumber, and I heard a voice tender, yet peculiarly strong saying: "Brother, the good work has begun -- behold!.. A living demonstration is born!"

--Andrew Jackson Davis

by Rev. Robert J. Macdonald

In this day of electronic news, it is rather hard for us to recapture the great significance of Davis' words, for, if the same event happened today, it would already be part of the clamor on the morning or evening news. Davis wrote these words at his home in Poughkeepsie, in southern New York, while the first demonstration was underway in Hydesville.

Hydesville has become fabled to millions of people. It is strange that this small hamlet, a mere huddle of houses marked by a single cross-road, should bear witness to the world of truth in the living manifestation of life after physical death. Perhaps there's a living parallel in other noble occurrences which have re-charted the future of the earth -- Jesus in Bethlehem.. Buddha under the traditional Bodhi tree.. Mohammed out in the wastes of Arabia.

Born of a humble family in Blooming Grove, N.Y., the life of Andrew Jackson Davis was a daily combination of the humdrum attributed to the very poor. He had an inquiring poetic nature and like so many poor lads of his day, his mind was so often filled with dreams of bigger things and golden opportunities. One day in 1844 was just such an occasion. Davis was then 18. He was about to become a student of Mesmer, the Austrian who introduced the world to Mesmerism -- later known as hypnotism.

While under the influence of Mesmerism he was able to pass into what he regarded as a superior state, a condition which allowed him to speak of things beyond his fail, and normal capabilities.

His discourses were frequently the subject of much discussion among learned men. His written words couched in a language, which was the prerogative of formally educated people, confounded those who sought to explain them by then accepted definition.

The message of Infinite Intelligence is always the same steadfast message, to look beyond -- to look for life within and in the midst of seeming death. There is a greater life of the Spirit -- life after the physical body has shed its noble furnishing.

Swedenborg saw a world fairer than the human eye could of its own behold. George Fox, the enlightened Quaker pierced that veil. John Wesley heard the sweet compelling voices from "Over There". Jesus, Joan of Arc, Socrates, Moses, they all heard the voice. Man does not choose the instrument, Infinite Intelligence, alone, moving over the face of the terrestrial world quickens all alike -- the poet, the teacher, the seer and the prophet.

Spirit: the unseen counselor

The occurrences in 1848 at the Fox cottage in Hydesville are revelations in the many which spirit have brought into expression during the centuries. Man stands not alone but is surrounded and supported in his quest for greater realities by the living spirit of Infinite Intelligence. Life is eternal.

Spiritualism is today a modern expression which reaches out far beyond Poughkeepsie and Hydesville --far beyond the civilized meccas of this nation. What a boon Spiritualism has proven to the Orthodox Christian. Spiritualism unlocks the lips of the denominational minister. It has given him words of comfort to speak to the bereaved, warm words to melt the ice and despair.

The whole view of religion is undergoing major changes, and 1848 was a year which saw the seeds of that change. In place of death has come a deeper, more genuine faith and belief in life beyond the grave. This life has given religion a new, beautiful outlook, one freed of uncertainty and pain.

High and low, professor and laborer, have come to drink the sweet waters of the well filled with love and faith. Life and the teachings of the Bible take on even greater significance as man learns that this earth expression is only an anteroom to the larger, greater life awaiting. "Behold! A living demonstration is born".

Skeleton Found

The following statement appeared in the Boston Journal November 23, 1904:

Rochester, N.Y., Nov. 22, 1904: The skeleton of the man supposed to have caused the rappings first heard by the Fox sisters in 1848 has been found in the walls of the house occupied by the sisters, and clears them from the only shadow of doubt held concerning their sincerity in the discovery of spirit communication.

The Fox sisters declared they learned to communicate with the spirit of a man (Charles B. Rosna), and that he told them he had been murdered and buried in the cellar. Repeated excavations failed to locate the body and thus give proof positive of their story.

The discovery was made by school children playing in the cellar of the building in Hydesville known as the "Spook House," where the Fox sisters heard the wonderful rappings. William H. Hyde, a reputable citizen of Clyde, who owns the house, made an investigation and found an entire human skeleton between the earth and crumbling cellar walls, undoubtedly that of the wandering pedlar who it was claimed was murdered in the East room of the house, and whose body was hidden in the cellar.

Mr. Hyde has notified relatives of the Fox sisters, and the notice of the discovery will be sent to the National Order of Spiritualists, many of whom remember having made pilgrimage to the "Spook House," as it was commonly called. The finding of the bones practically corroborates the sworn statement made by Margaret Fox, April 11, 1848.

Writings left by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle place the number of Spiritualists in America in 1854 at 3,000,000. He estimated that there were 10,000 mediums in the country at this time.

These figures attest to the spread of Spiritualism which swept America in the 1850's, following the Hydesville manifestations.

The Mysterious Rappings

Extract from Horace Greeley's article in the New York Tribune, giving his opinion of the Fox sisters and their mediumship.

Mrs. Fox and her three daughters left our city yesterday on their return to Rochester, after a stay here of some weeks, during which they have subject the mysterious influence, by which they seem to be accompanied, to every reasonable test, and to the keen and critical scrutiny of hundreds who have chosen to visit them, or whom they have been repeatedly searched and scrutinized; they have been taken without an hour's notice into houses they had never before entered; they have been all unconsciously placed on a glass surface concealed under the carpet in order to interrupt electrical vibrations; they have been disrobed by a committee of ladies appointed without notice, and insisting that neither of them should leave the room until the investigation has been made, ... yet we believe no one, to this moment, pretends that he has detected either of them in producing or causing the "rappings," nor do we think any of their contemners has invented a plausible theory to account for the production of these sounds, nor the singular intelligence which has seemed to be manifest through them.

Some ten or twelve days since they gave up their rooms at the hotel and devoted the remainder of their sojourn here to visiting several families, to which they had been invited by persons interested in the subject, and subjecting the singular influence to a closer, calmer examination than could be given to it at a hotel, and before casual companies of strangers, drawn together by vague curiosity more than rational interest, or predetermined and invincible hostility. Our own dwelling was among those they thus visited; not only submitted to, but courting, the fullest and keenest inquiry with regard to the alleged "manifestations" from the spirit-world, by which they were attended.

We devoted what time we could spare from our duties out of three days to this subject, and it would be the basest cowardice not to say that we are convinced beyond a doubt of their perfect integrity and good faith in the premises. Whatever may be the origin of cause of the "rappings," the ladies in whose presence they occur do not make them. We tested this thoroughly and to our entire satisfaction.

Their conduct and bearing is as unlike that of deceivers as possible, and we think no one acquainted with them could believe them at all capable of engaging in so daring, impious, and shameful a juggle as this would be if they caused the sounds. And it is not possible that such a juggle should have been so long perpetrated in public. A juggler performs one feat quickly and hurries on to another; he does not devote weeks after weeks to the same thing over and over, deliberately, in full view of hundreds who sit beside or confronting him in broad daylight, not to enjoy, but to detect his trick. A deceiver naturally avoids conversation on the subject of his knavery, but these ladies converse freely and fully with regard to the origin of these "rappings" in their dwellings years ago, the various sensations they caused, the neighborhood excitement created, the progress of the developments -- what they have seen, heard and experienced from first to last. If all were false, they could not fail to have involved themselves ere this in a labyrinth of blasting contradictions, as each separately gives accounts of the most astonishing developments at this or that time. Persons foolish enough so to commit themselves without reserve or caution, could not have deferred a thorough self-exposure for a single week.

Of course, a variety of opinions of strange a matter would naturally be formed by the various persons who have visited them, and we presume that those who have merely run into their room for an hour or so, and listened, among a huddle of strangers, to a medley of questions -- not all admitting of very profitable answers -- put to certain invisible intelligences, and answered by "rappings," or singular noises on the floor, table, etc., as the alphabet was called over, or otherwise, would naturally go away, perhaps puzzled, probably disgusted, rarely convinced. It is hardly possible that a matter, ostensibly so grave, could be presented under circumstances less favourable to conviction. But of those who have enjoyed proper opportunities for a full investigation, we believe that fully three-fourths are convinced, as we are, that these singular sounds and seeming manifestations are not produced by Mrs. Fox and her daughters, nor by any human being connected with them.

How they are caused, and whence they proceed, are questions which open a much wider field of inquiry, with whose way-marks we do not profess to be familiar. He must be well acquainted with the arcana of the universe, who, shall presume dogmatically to decide that these manifestations are natural or supernatural. The ladies say that they are informed that this is but the beginning of a new era, or economy, in which spirits clothed in the flesh are to be more closely and palpably connected with those who have put on immortality; that the manifestations have already appeared in many other families and are destined to be diffused and rendered clearer, until all who will may communicate freely with their friends who have "shuffled off this mortal coil." Of all this we know nothing, and shall guess nothing.

But if we were simply to print the questions we asked and answers we received, during a two-hours' uninterrupted conference with the "rappers," we should at once be accused of having done so expressly to sustain the theory which regards those manifestations as the utterances of departed spirits.

Resolutions and By-Laws Changed

Resolutions and By-Laws adopted at the 84th Annual Convention N.S.A.C. Phoenix, Arizona October 7, 1976

RESOLUTIONS:

Whereas the written requirements for a candidate for ordination as Minister of Spiritualism are clearly identified in Article IX, Section 4, Page 34, of the N.S.A.C. Constitution and By-Laws, and whereas the Examining Board has been in violation of Section 5, Article IX, Page 34, with their requirement of requesting the candidate to take a written examination in addition to the oral examination as is set forth in Section 5, — Resolved, the N.S.A.C. Board of Directors or the Examining Committee duly appointed by said National Board, be directed to abide by the N.S.A.C. Constitution and By-Laws, Article IX, Section 5, Page 34, which requires only an "oral examination as to his educational training, his special knowledge, and his ability and moral fitness to teach the science, philosophy and religion of Spiritualism."

RESOLUTIONS:

As, the following resolution was adopted at the 1975 N.S.A.C. Convention: "Be it resolved, that the National Board be directed to seek the opportunity with this TV show for an equal response, and further, that good work as the honorable name of Spiritualism," (an interview on the Mike Douglas Show featuring "Blackstone The Magician.")

Whereas, a large segment of Spiritualists are interested in said action; and

Whereas, the Board of Directors has the duty, by their office to uphold and protect the dignity and ideals of Spiritualism; and whereas the awareness and knowledge of the membership's representation by the Board is imperative to the stability and growth of the religion of Spiritualism;

Whereas, a lack of action lessens morale of the majority of the membership and encourages degradation; therefore be it resolved that all future action taken by the Board of Directors be printed in the National Spiritualist Magazine, the national voice of the N.S.A.C.

BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

Persons who give examinations for certificates, that they be a qualified certificate holder.

BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

Whereas our movement is missing an identity, be it resolved that we display and promote our symbol, The Sunflower, in our churches as a means of identification.

Extraordinary Evidence

The photograph on this page is a reproduction of a color polaroid enlargement which hangs in the Taylor Memorial Interracial Spiritualist Church in Phoenix. It was taken by Mr. William Richardson following the evening service Thanksgiving Day, 1960, at which the chapel was completed and dedicated.

The number of lillies appearing in the photograph were equal to the evening's attendance.

The white lines of light visible in front of the pulpit resembling lillies appeared as the print developed. They represent an unusual manifestation credited to the late co-founder, Mrs. Lillie May Washington.

TNS is indebted to Rev. Charles Jessup of Houston, Texas, who arranged with the pastor, Rev. Nellye Maye Taylor, to borrow the print.

N.S.A.C. Healing Center:

A Commitment to our future

This article of the N.S.A.C. Healing Center is devoted to the N.S.A.C. Healers, Ministers, Laymen and friends of The National Spiritualist Association of Churches. All the member of the organization will be asked to pledge anew their loyalty and support to the beautiful truth and teachings of Spiritualism.

In the brief period of existence the N.S.A.C. Healing Center has tried to call attention to the prayer groups in different areas which should be of concern to all of us. These prayer groups have shown great progress and growth. They are a part of our own national organization and they are demonstrating the great power of healing through prayer which is one of the most important factors of our movement.

The N.S.A.C. Healing Center USA was founded under the guidance of Angel Loved Ones in our own National Association of Churches and we are proud of the Healers so willing to give of time and strength for the sake of helping mankind in their mental, physical and spiritual needs.

Leaving aside statistical indications of the progress and growth such as the increase in the number of prayer groups, the number of members, or the number of requests received, the greatest sign of our maturing is the deepening awareness in all of us that we are a distinct family of the National Spiritualist Association of Churches with our identity.

We are coming to a fuller realization that we are dependent on one another; that we are joined to one another in a special relationship whether we live in Texas, Michigan, California or Florida.

No one Healer or Minister or layman is solely responsible for the progress and growth but all of us together--past and present have contributed to our maturity under the impetus of God's love.

Without a dedicated and generous Spiritualist family and many loyal friends even our statistical progress would be much lower and our ability to serve one another through such a

The greatest value of Spiritualism rests in its fundamental philosophy...

Evidences of the ministry of angels, and the communion of departed spirits expressing interest in the welfare of their native land are recorded throughout history in sufficient number to justify analogies between such as the Maid of Orleans and many mediums of the present century. Even the recorded fact of Joan of Arc is comparable.

Yes, history is replete with facts and incidents involving the same fundamental idea which underlines the basis of mental and physical phenomena, so much repudiated by prejudice and theological bigotry.

Some clergymen, however, without recognizing Spiritualism as a religion, have nevertheless recognized and openly expressed the very ideas and facts on which Spiritualism legitimately rests. The example which follows is typical of this.

The New York Herald quoted the Rev. Dr. Newman, in the June 30, 1880 edition, on a sermon delivered in Brooklyn, N.Y. It is as follows:

"Swedenborg was visited by his departed friends, and Wesley confirmed the fact. Adam Clark entertained the opinion that departed spirits returned to earth. Hannah More, when dying, extended her arms to embrace some one: and calling the name of a departed sister, she exclaimed 'Joy!' and expired. Such experiences are not uncommon in this our day. Strong presumptive arguments may be deduced from the immateriality of mind and the oneness of personal consciousness; but the appearance of the departed is an unanswerable argument. If we implicitly believe the Bible record, there should not be left the shadow of a doubt. According to that record, five persons returned to earth -- three of whom had entered the spirit world through the portals of the grave, one was translated and returned, and one was caught up into the third Heaven. The first who returned to earth was Samuel the Prophet; and what information did he give of the spirit world? That the sainted souls are at rest there; and that they know the future. What did Moses and Elias say? That they were in their personal identity, consciousness, and knowledge, as previous to their departures; that they not only knew what was taking place on earth, but had a deep interest therein. From Peter, James, and John we learn that there is another life; that there are mansions of delight; that the inhabitants never die; and that the angels will escort us thither. And we have heard from that spirit land through one who was born here, went there, and returned to us, and remained on earth a period of 24 years. And what does Paul the Apostle say? That the soul and body are separable; that the soul is conscious in this state of separation, and that the body could live (only for a brief period under the power of organic life) in the absence of the soul. It is contrary to reason, to all our ideas of our nature, to suppose for one moment that those who have left our earth have either ceased to live, or are disinterested in our earthly welfare. The highest conception of Heaven by some persons is to loaf around the throne and play on a golden harp. Rather let me believe that the departed ones are still the heroes of earth and time, aiding us to fight the tremendous battle of life."

program as the N.S.A.C. Healing Center would be minimal.

God-Spirit, Infinite Intelligence has given mankind many gifts--spiritual gifts, talents and abilities, and material goods. They are given to us for our use, we are the stewards of these gifts and we will be called on by this great Universal Power to give an account of our stewardship.

Our good use of these gifts is an essential element of our Spiritualist responsibilities. We are given an opportunity to exercise our gifts. The future life and growth of the N.S.A.C. HEALING Center and each PRAYER GROUP depends upon our response to this responsibility we have as Spiritualists.

Let us continue to be a growing, maturing, concerned organization. A pledge of support for the Healing Center and Prayer Groups is a commitment to our future as an alive, mature Spiritualist family believing in the teachings of Spiritualism.

In this Thanksgiving Season will you contribute to the vast printing expense of our monthly "ONE EACH DAY" articles which are giving the physical, mental and spiritual needs to those who are in need of this material? Your donations will be appreciated and you will have the consolation of knowing that you have kept the Torch of Truth aglow.

Book Review

Death and The After Life, by Andrew Jackson Davis, published in 1865.

by Marilyn J. Awtry

The author commences his series of lectures on death and the after life in aligning orthodoxy and Spiritualism by the truth of the teachings of the Apostle Paul, correctly interpreted or understood. The teaching introducing the philosophical discussion is "There is a natural body and there is a physical body." However, the correlation between the physical and the spiritual must be considered. If we believe or accept a spiritual body, we must further realize there is a something inside that body and that is "Spirit." This further leads to the fact that a spiritual body is substance and simple rules of science and philosophy implies the associate properties of both weight and force. This body must occupy space - somewhere! In accordance with the law of space, it must have a relative as well as an absolute consciousness.

Davis further identifies the physical body as relatively getting cold at the time of death while the elements of the spiritual body produce a warmth. As a clairvoyant, he defines the halo as an ethereal emanation. It is most interesting to note a controversial issue of this day as to what constitutes death, the non-functioning heart or brain was expressed by Davis in 1865 when describing the transition of his friend and he says, "... his brain being the last to yield up the life principle."

It is a fact that one's place in the Summer-land is found on one's moral status, not intellect nor social condition. The accusing angel is the 'memory' and the principle of justice is the ever present bar at which one is tried. By one's status one elects his place in eternity. Each continues in his personal identity and thought. This is evident in the communication through mediums. The orthodox continue to teach orthodoxy; each according to their understanding. This continues until a teacher of celestial consciousness leads them into the pure light... and this may take thousands of years in our way of expressing time.

Having established spirit as a reality, Davis expounds on the Summerland as the many mansions referred to in the Bible, "In my father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you." A world of grandeur consisting of all we know, see, and understand, however, expressed in expansiveness and perfection. Davis, like Swedenborg, claims to have frequented the spirit world both by clairvoyance and astral travel.

He expresses clearly that to obtain the state of consciousness for psychic results, one should not clog the digestive organs nor stimulate the nervous system. He speaks of restoring to fasting routinely and urges one to resist the temptation to indulge in the higher consciousness for too long a period of time.

The Spirit World is actual and is not remote -- a land of sturdy life and progressive growth. On entrance, one is led to one's compatible surroundings, based on the consciousness established on the earth plane. Davis offers detailed names and descriptions of the islands and habitants in the spirit world, and reconciles the belief of each to his own level of understanding. He states that people are drawn to their ethnic groups as well as to their professions. The infallible history of each soul is written in the Spirit World for all to know. Death provides a screen, a strainer or sieve to allow the laws of nature to place each in their rightful place -- operation of the law of attraction. Here abides a natural state of human existence growing out of the universal system of law of cause and effect.

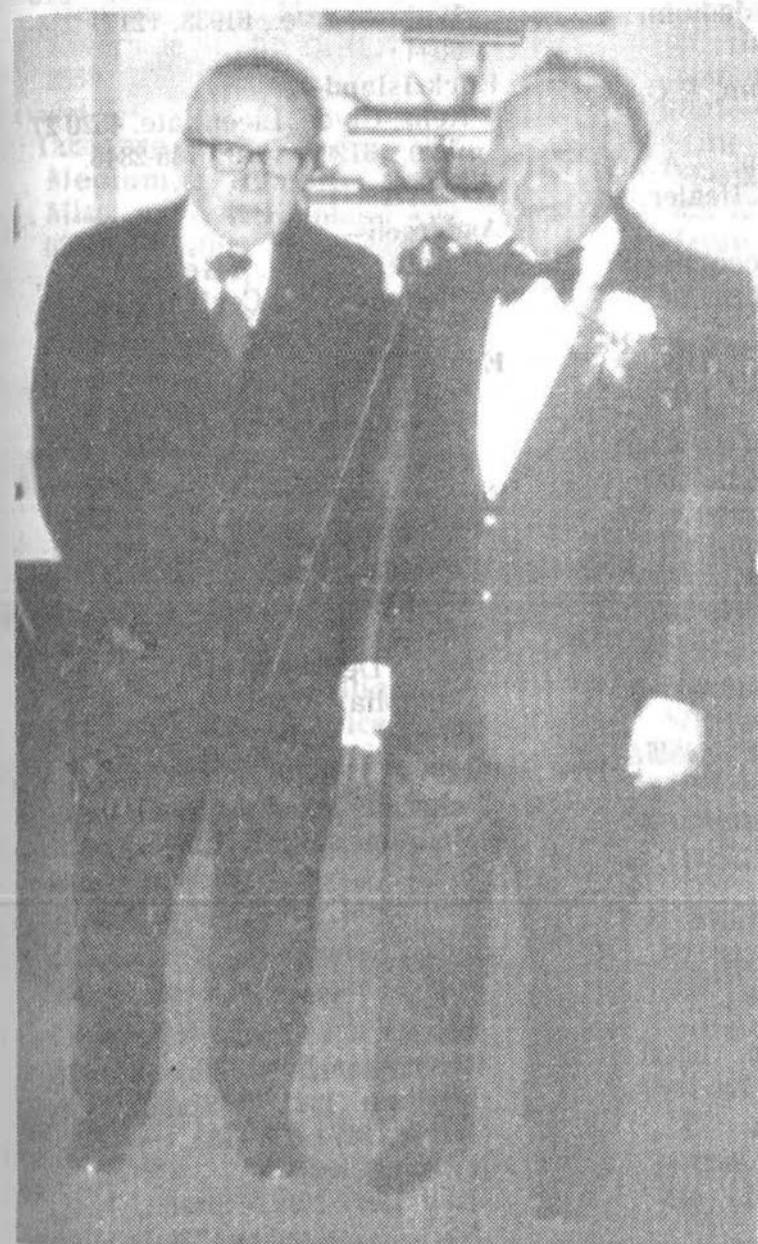

The same laws operating while in the physical, operate in the spirit world. One can only absorb as he is influenced by that for which he has an affinity. On arriving in the higher side of life, those with demoralizing motives have the greatest density; however, the law of progress is activated and the universal positive power reigns. Slowly though it may be, the law cleanses all personalities of their transient imperfections. However, the free will of the Spirit determines the rate of progression. Calling oneself a Spiritualist does not elevate one. It is the works, the possessing of the great

He quoted from 1st Corinthians, 13th. chapter the last two lines "And now abideth faith, hope, love - but the greatest of these is love." He reminisced about the people who came to attend the Ordination. There were a number of them that belonged to a Young People Club of the Church. Long time friends as Polly Bickel, Charles Kapp, Viola Melms, Ruth Hanson. Also members of the Lyceum from years ago were present. It was a most beautiful day that all that were present will remember for a long time.

soul stirring ideas and the spirituality that one lead one to greater heights.

We can conclude from the writing that the Spirit World is as real as the earth plane. We continue in our same mode of activities and associate with the same classes of peoples. Life goes on. Davis says "Interiorly, you are already in the Spirit World. You feel, think, decide, and act as a resident of the inner-life.. Death merely removes the cloud of matter from blinding your spiritual senses.

Man's Measurement

A man's no bigger than the way
He treats his fellow man.
This standard has his measure been Since time itself began.
He's measured not by tithes and creeds
High sounding though they be;
Nor by the gold that's put aside,
Nor by his sanctity.
He's measured not by social rank,
When character's the test;
Nor by his earthly pomp and show,
Displaying wealth possessed.
He's measured by his justice, right,
His fairness at his play,
His squareness in all dealings made,
His honest, upright way.
These are his measures, ever near
To serve him when they can;
For man's no bigger than the way
He treats his fellow man.

Death changes only the form of life

"Death may be painful dying itself is not."

Written by Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, M.D.

"We have many cases where people have died and made a comeback, and in my opinion, there is not a shadow of a doubt--that dying is only the shedding of the physical body...People who have shared these experiences with us have seen a light...felt the presence of great compassion and love...and after passing through a mist or a tunnel, approaching the light...were also aware of a guide or loved one who had passed ahead of them into this higher state of consciousness. What we have learned from these experiences is that we are never alone---neither in death---not in life, that we are loved and guided---and after this peaceful transition we will have to account for what we have been doing with our own life. What has impressed me perhaps most, is that we are not only responsible for our deeds and actions---but also for our words and thoughts which affects others."

Spiritualists owe Dr. Kubler-Ross a great debt, for she, almost single-handedly, has given the medical profession and clergy cause to weigh past and present evidence of life after death. Her reputation, accreditation, and personal investigations based primarily on interviews of persons once pronounced clinically dead present a case which may be criticized but not rejected.

The findings of Dr. Ross do not differ from those that we as Spiritualists have been saying since the beginning. It was said by Plato, and undoubtedly by others before him. But it rests with Dr. Kubler-Ross. She has taken carefully documented proof to her peers, and word of this has been printed in the world's leading newspapers. The content of her message gives new life and weight to our religion, for now we have a defender who speaks to open ears.

Her efforts have sparked many of her colleagues to investigate further. And the publication of her findings has caused many others in the medical profession to discuss similar incidents and findings which they have witnessed and recorded for many years.

Spiritualists are the benefactors. As more voices are heard more people will welcome our words, and in time give us our due.

Dr. Kubler-Ross has authored several books. The first by this famed psychiatrist and former University of Chicago professor was On Death and Dying. It became a best seller in 1969. Six years later she wrote Death: The Final Stage of Growth. Both books are remarkable and worthy of your reading.

In a review by Time magazine on Death and Dying, the author was complemented. "The Chicago seminar has vanquished the conspiracy of silence that once shrouded the hospital's terminal wards. It has brought death out of the darkness. In so doing, it has shown how, and with what quiet grace, the human spirit composes itself for extinction."

Dr. Kubler-Ross is a friend whom we are fortunate to have.

And What Is The Coming Of Transition Like?

Separation of the Silver Cord signals the end of one state of being and the beginning of another. Andrew Jackson Davis, the Poughkeepsie seer, once looked at the coming of clinical death and described it thusly:

"Death is the word used to signify 'the end of life,' spoken by persons who see not that seeming death is really 'the beginning of life,' and the opening of the sacred volume of eternity. But let us peer through the seeming, into that which is within the veil."

"The person is now dying; and it is to be a rapid death. Observe something about the temperature. The feet are cold; the hands hot and white; a coldness pervades the entire cuticle. See? What is that accumulating in the atmosphere just over the pillow'd head? It is an ethereal emanation -- a golden magnetic halo -- a throbbing, almost self-conscious atmosphere."

"The bodily temperature is now lowering rapidly. The coldness has extended upward from the toes to the knees, and from the finger tips to the elbows; while, in exactly the same ratio, the emanation has ascended higher over the head. The arms are now cold to the shoulders, and legs to the hips; and the emanation, although not higher in the air, is more expanded, with a compact white center, resembling the bright nucleus of a miniature sun. This brilliant central spot is, in very truth, the brain of the new spiritual organism now forthcoming."

"The death-cold steals over the heaving breast, and around on either side the temperature is greatly diminished. Look now! The psychic emanation contains some proportion of every principle composing the soul -- motion, life, sensation, ethers, essences, vital magnetism, vital electricity, instincts -- and, much enlarged by accessions, it has floated up in a compact mass, and now occupies a higher altitude near the ceiling."

"Now the lungs have ceased to breathe, the pulse is still, the physical heart is motionless; while the spinal cord and ganglia, are ablaze with contractive and expansive energies, which gently pulsate and seem to direct and govern themselves by a kind of automatic self-consciousness. See! The negative (gray) substance of the brain is interiorly throbbing -- a slow, measured, profoundly deep throb -- not painful, but massive and harmonious like the deep heart-beat of the sea."

"Look up! The exalted emanation, obedient to its own changeless laws, is now elongated, and has attained a position at right angles with the horizontal body below. Behold! See how the outline of a beautiful human form is being fashioned within that emanation. Beneath it is still tied by a white life-cord to the medulla and the corpus callosum within the brain."

"You observe that a very fine vitalic thread still connects the vortices and central fibres of the dying brain with the lower extremities of the exalted outlined human being in the atmosphere.

Notwithstanding the existence of this life-thread, which acts like a telegraphic conductor -- conveying messages in opposite directions at the same moment -- you observe that the shadowy image, enveloped in a golden emanation, continues almost imperceptibly to ascend skyward."

"There! What do I now see? A symmetrically shaped human head rising above the mass -- slowly, beautifully rising out of the golden cloud of substantial principles. And now appears the outline of a spiritual countenance - a quiet face and full of beauty, surpassing the power of words to delineate. Look again! Behold, emerging the fair neck and beautiful shoulders; and see! as we gaze, out come, one after the other, in rapid succession, as if influenced and directed by the wand of a magician, all the parts of a new body -- a bright, natural looking, yet spiritual image -- only a little less than the deserted physical body a perfect re-appearance of the person in the immediate heavens, prepared to accompany the celestial group of superintending intelligences to the Summerland."

"What was that? In the twinkling of an eye the vitalic electrical telegraphic thread was snapped -- the yet lingering particles and principles were suddenly attracted upward and absorbed into the spiritual body -- and lo! the new organization is free of terrestrial gravitations, is instantly an absolutely independent of the weights and care that chained it firmly imprisoned to earth. (Those only are free at death who have lived righteously. Any enthralling passion, the least feeling of duty undischarged, of injustice committed, holds the spirit to earth, as a ship fastened by a heavy anchor. Only the pure are free.)"

"Here now behold a true, substantial, immortal, spiritual body. It was sown in darkness and dishonor; it is raised in beauty and brightness."

"Behold the contrast -- the vastly wide difference -- between the interior and outward. Cast your eyes around the room. There are many friends, aged relatives, and little children in the death chamber; they mourn, without comfort even of blind faith; they grieve, with only the whisperings of hope to the doubting fear; they gather around the prostrate, cold body; they press together the lids of the sightless eyes; in silence and in sorrow they withdraw from the scene; and now other hands commence those final preparations with which the living consecrate the dead."

"But let us open our brighter eyes -- the eyes that we shall all have when clothed with the deathless garment of immortality. See! The newly organized spiritual body -- surrounded by a group of guardian angels -- moves gracefully off in the direction of celestial shores. The arisen personality follows a vibrating thread of magnetic attraction, which while the dying mutations were in process we noticed penetrating the apartment and fastening itself to the earthly brain of the resurrected. It comes floating down from the sensorium of superior intelligences -- a golden fibrillous stream of telegraphic light -- sent from on high, to greet with love and guide with wisdom the newly arisen. The thought-laden love-thread tranquilly draws the new born higher up and farther away."

"Over the velvet lands and flower fields of the celestial country the bending bow of eternal promise is visible, filling with indescribable beauty the boundless ocean of world-laden skies, which cover with infinite loveliness the immeasurable zone-lands of the Hereafter."

THE FLU

When your back is broke and your eyes are blurred,

And your shin bones knock and your tongue is furred,

And your tonsils squeak and your hair gets dry,

And your doggone sure that you're going to die.

But you're skeered you won't and afraid you will.

Just drag to bed and have your chill,
And pray the Lord to see you through,
For you've got the Flu, boy,
You've got the Flu.

When your toes curl up and your belt goes flat,
And you're twice as mean as a Thomas cat,

And life is a long and dismal curse,
And your food all tastes like a hard boiled hearse,

When your lattice aches and your head's a-buzz,

And nothing is as it ever was,
Here are my sad regrets to you --
You've got the Flu, boy,
You've got the Flu.

What is like, this doggone Flu?
Ask me, brother, for I've been through.
It is by Misery out of Despair;
It pulls your teeth and curls your hair;
It thins your blood and brays your bones,
And fills your craw with moans and groans,
And sometimes, maybe, you get well,
Some call it Flu -- I call it ...!

J.P. McEvoy,
Chicago Tribune

6. We believe that the highest morality is contained in the Golden Rule: "Whatsoever ye would that others should do unto you do ye also unto them."
7. We affirm the moral responsibility of the individual, and that he makes his own happiness or unhappiness as he obeys or disobeys Nature's physical and spiritual laws.
8. We affirm that the doorway to reformation is never closed against any human soul here or hereafter.
9. We affirm that the precept of Prophecy contained in the Bible is a Divine attribute proven through Mediumship.
